

Gators beat Booker, head for final

By JEFF BROWN

BELLE GLADE - Their starting quarterback was on the sidelines with an injured hand but that didn't stop the Glades Day Gators Friday night as they took the wind out of the Tornadoes and earned a berth in the state class A final.

This is the second time in three years that the Gators have gone to the final game. Tomorrow night's game will be a rematch of the state championship game of 1980 that Baker lost to the Gators.

The Gators shut out the Sarasota-Booker Tornadoes 14-0 to win the Sectionals Friday, December 3.

José Perez scored both of the Gator TDs on runs from inside the five yard line.

The two teams played a scoreless first quarter.

The Tornadoes drove the ball to the ten yard line in the first half but the Gator defense shut them down and recovered the ball on downs.

"We played the kinda defense Friday that you have to play to win the state championship," said Coach Byron Walker.

Brian Lohmann, filling in at quarterback for Garcia, drove the Gators on the ground to their first touchdown of the game in the second quarter. José Perez, who led the team with 62 yards on nine carries, carried the ball over from the 10 yard line. Walker hit the extra point and the Gators led 7-0.

That was all they would need. The Tornadoes didn't put any points on the board all night, although they drove to the two-yard line in the third quarter before the Gators took over on downs.

In the fourth quarter, José Perez again did the honors when he ran over from the one yard line to score his second touchdown of the night. Schlechter again hit the extra point, putting a capper on a night in which he also snagged an interception.

Lohmann had one interception on defense, but was 0 for 3 passing from the quarterback position. He was also intercepted twice. His ground offense helped carry the team to victory.

"It makes you feel good when your back-up quarterback can go in in the semi-finals of the state and get the job done," said Walker.

The Gators left for Baker yesterday at 2:40 p.m.

Walker said the team would travel halfway the first day and arrive in Baker Thursday.

Garcia, who suffered a broken finger in the Regional playoff two weeks ago, is expected to be back Friday.

"We'll play him as long as he can go," said Walker.

He said he is expecting a very quick and aggressive attack from Baker. Both teams play a slightly different type of ball than they did when they met in the state final of 1980, according to Walker.

"We have the same set, but a different style of play. They have a different backfield set but the same style of play," he explained.

Strang ready to start cooking

By JEFF BROWN

BELLE GLADE - He just took over Monday, and already, Belle Glade's new city manager, W.E. "Tommy" Strang, Jr. is ready to cook.

Charcoal cook that is.

"I love to cook," he said. "For 35 years now, I've done most of the cooking on the weekend."

He said he first started cooking over charcoal in 1947. His construction business had to confiscate several hundred charcoal cookers from a warehouse tenant who couldn't pay his rent.

That's what got him started.

He took several of the cookers to his hunting cabin and started using them.

"Since then, I've cooked just about everything over charcoal," he said. "Bear meat, deer meat, steaks, chicken, fish, pork."

He said his specialty is steak.

"That's what I say, anyway," he smiled. He said he'd enjoy being a member of the well-known Belle Glade Port Committee.

"I don't see any reason why I shouldn't," he said. "I'd love to. I hope they invite me."

Since 1947, he has designed his own barbecue pit, which he'll have to leave when he leaves his home in Ormond Beach.

He doesn't intend to move to Belle Glade permanently until late Spring or early Summer because his son, Doron, is involved in a local club in the Ormond Beach area and has several projects to complete.

Until then, Strang said he may find a motor home to live in and then start looking for a home.

"Whatever I end up with, I'll end up with a barbecue pit," he said.

Strang, 61, started with the city Monday, December 6, after 20 years with Briley, Wild and Associates as a project representative, associate and director. His involvement with Briley, Wild's Belle Glade projects since 1966 has made him familiar with the area, though.

In and out of the area while working on various projects for the last 16 years, he's seen many changes to the area.

Commission adopts water and sewage bond issues

By JEFF BROWN

BELLE GLADE - The Belle Glade City Commission Monday night held a special meeting to give approval to the resolutions necessary to issue $4.3 million in municipal bonds for improvements to the city sewage treatment plant.

Mayor Thomas L. Altman told the commissioners that a special trip to New York City was necessary to appeal a rating of that issue that left the bonds "dead as a duck."

He said that Standard and Poor's had rated the bonds a double B rating, which made the bonds unacceptable risk to the American Municipal Bond Assurance Corporation (AMBAC), which insures bonds.

That rating was given on Thursday, December 2. Altman said the city could appeal the rating if officials attended a meeting in New York City the next morning, December 3, at 9 o'clock.

He and several officials, including City Attorney John E. Baker, flew to New York. They traveled with George Wedgeworth, president of the Glades Sugar Co-operative, and John Cunningham, an engineer with Briley, Wild and Associates, the engineering firm designing the sewage plant.

Wedgeworth's presence at the appeal was necessary because the co-operative is one of the city's biggest customers and Standard and Poor's had questions concerning the solvency of the co-operative.

"Mr. Wedgeworth did an outstanding job," said Baker. "I think at some time in the future, the city should recognize that contribution one way or another."

Negotiations for a better rating required the city to make some additional commitments than it had planned, according to Baker and Altman. The biggest change involves the utility tax fund that has to be set under the bond issue.

The city was functioning with a system that required it to set aside $16,000 each month for use in overriding costs that may arise.

At the end of the month, the city would be able to use those funds as it sees fit while it sets aside $16,000 more in utility tax revenues. That cycle would continue, with the city never having to commit more than $16,000 during the life of the issue.

According to Baker, the negotiations with Standard and Poor's resulted in that formula's alteration. The city must now set aside $250,000 each month in its override fund.

At the end of the year, the city may use that money as it sees fit, but it must start the fund anew. It may use the interest on the fund throughout the year.

"I think it is something we can live with," said City Finance Director Frank Anderson. "I'd rather not. But if it's what it takes to have this one put on the boards . . . away we go."

Standard and Poor's re-rated the bonds at triple B, and AMBAC agreed to insure them.

The commissioners also approved the sale of the bonds to Clayton Brown and Associates, Inc. of Sarasota. Cornelius J. Fagan, a vice president with the firm, presented the city with a check for $43,250, about one percent of the value of the bonds.

He said he would have check for the remainder at the final closing in New York.

The city's bonds are marketed at an interest rate of 10 1/4 percent and a discount rate of one and a half percent.

According to Bill Fray of the Leedy Corporation, the city's financial consultant, similar issues have been marketed at 10 1/4 percent interest with a discount rate of 2.5 to 2.75 percent. The lower discount rate on the city's bonds will save it between $10 and $15 per bond, he said.

"We feel comfortable and confident that the proposal before the city today is the best proposal available and recommend the city go ahead with it," said Fray.

His 20 years with Briley, Wild have put him in charge of several engineering projects the firm handled, including bridges, water and sewage plants and wells.

That experience has given him an expertise in the public works department that the city commissioners said they felt would help the city in the area it needs the most assistance.

"I hope to be a big assistance to Mr. (Peter) Gray (the city's public works director) in his department. I hate to use the word 'improve,'" said Strang. "It implies that something is being done wrong. Any problems with the water and sewage plants aren't their fault. It's a matter of the system, not operation."

SOUTHERN BELL'S NEW CENTRAL OFFICE in Pahokee was toured by several residents Tuesday afternoon. The facility was installed at a cost of $1.5 million. It will be moved as soon as permanent equipment is installed in the building that houses the old system.

Opinion

Don't let liquor overcome your better sense

It's that time of the year again when some let their taste for liquor overcome their good sense and drive while intoxicated.

Unfortunately, drunkenness is not a new problem nor is it one likely to disappear soon.

It is simplistic to link drunkenness to bad economic times, poverty, wealth, or industrialization.

Early civilizations used wine and beer everyday before bacteria-free water was readily available. This sometimes resulted in personal and social problems.

AILSA DEWING

AND WHAT NOT

Some good reasons for shopping at home

On the off-chance that some of you may find it necessary to venture into the city to shop for some rarity not found locally, let me tell you I have made a pre-season foray into the mob-decked malls on your behalf. The slight lacerations and contusions I sustained were of no consequence; the crowds were not vicious. The severe damage was inflicted by head-on collisions with clerks.

The rarity I sought was a pair of shoes. At the time of my birth I was issued feet that should have been run through more lab tests before being put on the market. They were the perfect fit for mass production shoes. But I got them with the understanding (if you'll pardon the pun) that there will be no refunds or exchanges. My shoes may not fit me, I can only ask that they don't fight me.

So it was a shoe-shopping excursion that took me into the city.

I am of the opinion, after seeing all the elegant merchandise displayed in the best department stores, that an elicit class has emerged. It's not the monetized shopper, however, it's the store clerk, who is the real culprit.

Appressed with trimminess and a precise knowledge of the right size, color and price, such clerks are not unwilling to complete a transaction. Unless, of course, clerks are in conference with other clerks on matters which are none of the customer's — or the store owner's — business. A courteous customer maintains a distinct distance and does not interrupt.

Customers should also try not to bore clerks. I found. Don't nag them with your pettiness and dislikes. Chances are that if you can't decide from among the selection they brought out the first time, when they go back to the stockroom to look again, they'll disappear from your sight forever.

Once upon a time store clerks were readily identifiable by the fact that they dressed in black with the lace collars and the snub noses in their buttonholes. Today's clerks are camouflaged to look like customers. If you guess right one time out of three, luck's with you. And don't be embarrassed by your wrong guesses. Until you approached them, the customers you thought were clerks thought you were the clerk.

The clerk is probably that fleet-footed, suspicious character that keeps slipping into the fitting room. The one who had pegged as a shoplifter.

There was also a time when a salesperson's role was to convince the customer to want what the store had in stock. This argument was supposed to satisfy the customer. The point of the elicit clerks is to convince the customer that the store doesn't have anything like what is wanted in stock. Wouldn't sell it if it could be had because (a) nobody else would want it, (b) it wouldn't sell it (c) it isn't perfect yet and (d) when it's perfected it will cost too much. This argument produces the satisfied clerk.

So, if you go to the city, but don't say you weren't forewarned. You don't think I'm hobbling around in these wrong-sized banana-yellow button shoes by choice, do you? They're the only ones the clerk would sell me.

Even then, government leaders encouraged moderation in drinking habits.

As far back as 1619, laws were set up in colonial Virginia to punish drunkenness.

A person found drunk for the first time was to be privately reproved by a minister. Second offenders were to be reported publicly. Those found drunk a third time were to "lie in halter" for 12 hours and pay a fine.

There were no automobiles then, but there still may have been deaths attributed to drunken driving when intoxicated horse and carriage drivers lost control.

Almost everyone recognizes today that drunken driving is a serious problem. Many traffic deaths are alcohol related and a number of states, including Florida, have stiffened their DWI laws.

Drunk driving charges used to be dismissed or settled by a sympathetic judge for a nominal fine and a slap on the wrist. Today, the punishment can be a lot more severe, including jail time and loss of drivers license.

With the holiday season approaching, the opportunity for partying with alcohol may be more tempting than at other times.

Even if you are just a social drinker and have a few beers at a party, you can be a drunk driver if you insist on driving.

This year be sensible. If you must drink, let someone else do the driving, someone who hasn't been drinking.

You may end up saving your life and another as well.

Letters to the editor...

To The Good Citizens of Clewiston:

We are writing this appeal to you as decent, law-abiding people. You may not realize it, but the crime we are seeing to increase all over the country; in the past two years it has decreased in your community. This is due to officers of your police department getting out of the station and patrolling the streets of your neighborhoods frequently. These same officers get out of their squad cars and walk the alleys checking for unlocked or tampered doors.

They have put their life on the line many times for your protection. They do this as part of their job neither seeking glory or asking for thanks. They are professional, dedicated officers of the law. They do what you all know, they try to help when at all possible.

Now they need your encouragement and support. They won't ask for it themselves. So we, the wives of these officers do ask. Their morale and spirits are low. They are trusting God and the cause of the community to encourage them but this can take time and right now they need to know that all their efforts and dedication have not been in vain.

Thank You
Frances A. Hickmon

In this season of the year we wish to express our thanks and extend our appreciation to the Hendry General Ladies Auxiliary for their time and service which is so willingly and cheerfully given. We do not take lightly all of the benefits you bring to Hendry General. During this past year they have donated a salad bar and a hot soup kettle for the kitchen and for the dining room, an electric mixer for the kitchen and for the pharmacy, a Poisindex system. They are very diligent in distributing the Clewiston News to the patients for their reading enjoyment. Whatever, the need, they are willing to try to accomplish it.

We also want to thank the Clewiston News for sending the paper each week hot off the press for the patients. Jim Jones and the churches who send flowers for the patients.

Also, as a reminder, it is very lonely for the patients who have to spend a special holiday away from home and it is sometimes a very traumatic experience being a patient in the hospital. In the past, little holiday cards, bills, letters, may be given to the patients, etc. have been distributed from various service organizations which have given much pleasure to the patients. If you, or your club or organization would like to make something for the meal trays at Hendry General Hospital, it will be greatly appreciated by everyone.

You may contact Mrs. Beardsley, Dietician at the Hospital.

Diseases have been passed on from children to children in school grounds. This is why schools act as a shield and firmly upon children that they are not vaccinated against diseases. Children are not allowed to enter schools without immunization against diseases because they can easily spread them.

One of these cases came up in Miami. Up to 150 cases were munizations record, and three, their physicals. Please make sure that if your children begin school that they have their shots and physicals.

Not having these will only cause problems in the future even if it is in the middle of the school will request.

Please accept my sincere appreciation for the excellent coverage afforded my recent reelection effort. Your contributions to the electoral process enabled candidates to present their case to the voters. This is particularly helpful when a candidate is subject to a countywide vote.

Your future coverage of actions taken by the School Board and the events that occur at the school centers will enable the taxpayers to be informed and, hopefully, affect an even greater degree of citizen participation.

For this, I'm thankful. Obviously, community involvement is an important part of a successful school system.

Thank you for being a partner in education and the electoral process.

Cheap pleasures

Want to entertain yourself but don't quite know how you're going to afford it? Here are a few suggestions:

Wander over to where they are selling those fresh Christmas trees and inhale the clean, sweet fragrance of fir and pine.

Just stand around for a few minutes and drink in the smell. If that doesn't make you feel better, you probably have a cold and can't smell anything anyhow.

Otherwise, it'll increase your Christmas spirit and you'll probably buy a tree. C'mon, Christmas only happens once a year.

Walk barefoot into your backyard to enjoy the sunset and the breeze blowing through your hair.

You say you've had enough and no longer enjoy the sensation of wind rustling through your hair. Look at the bright side. At least you don't have to comb the stringy stuff out of your face.

Just enjoy the sunset and the breeze. Don't let your problems distract you. In a couple of months or years, you'll look back and try to recall what you were so concerned about. In fact, you may think of these as the good old days.

→ Pick up a new-born baby and hold it in your arms. If you don't have one handy in your family, get a hold of one somewhere else. Remember it's important to get a mother's permission first.

Now here's the good part. Just think if you could be that little baby and know everything that you know now.

Also if you're past the baby growing stage, you can appreciate the fact that you don't have to listen to baby cry all night or change diapers.

→ Turn off the television, radio or stereo. Sounds so good. Now, pick up a book and start reading. Stimulates the brain and expands the vocabulary.

Say you can't afford a book. Go over to the library. They've got all kinds and the price is right. It's free, so long as you turn it back in on time and don't lose it.

→ Go to the state play-off football game Friday. If you're any kind of a football fan and you've just been listening to games on the radio or reading about it in the newspaper, you're doing your self an injustice. Seeing the real thing is a lot more fun, colorful, and exciting.

Course you could stay home Friday and watch the tube while your brain turns to mush.

→ Join up with a group that's planning to go out Christmas caroling. I'd do this myself, but I don't want to get locked up for disturbing the peace. You've never heard me sing and you never will either.

Some of us weren't cut out to be Caruso, much less Buck Owens.

→ Go to church. Look around, there is sure to be one to suit you to a "T."

If church isn't your idea of a fun place, why are there so many smiling faces there?

City should work quickly on airport upgrade

For the second time this year, the Belle Glade City Commission has tried to get the wheels turning on the airport project.

Earlier this year, the commission and several members of the city staff, had met in a workshop to discuss the city's intentions for the facility.

A layout was examined and it looked like the city was about to move full speed ahead on a project which had been confined to the back burner for a long time.

The administration at that time, however, returned the project to the back burner. Perhaps it was put there temporarily until the city had adopted its 1982-1983 fiscal year budget. Or perhaps, with so many items that needed attention, it was lost in the shuffle.

We don't know. We think it time to give the project more attention, though. Standards have to be set so those desiring to place structures at the facility will know what is expected of them, and so the city can effectively regulate construction at the facility.

A layout or plan for the airport should be adopted and the exclusive rights of any fixed base operator should be established by the commission so that those desiring to lease space at the airport will know where they can locate and what they can do at their sites.

Other problems must be discussed and resolved if the city is ever to see full utilization of the facility. Are there certain types of aircraft which should not be permitted to land at Belle Glade? Should there be hours or even days that the airport cannot be used?

The city is taking the first steps in getting these questions and problems resolved. The commissioners have asked, Acting City Manager Frank Anderson to assign certain aspects of the airport plan to city employees for study.

When those studies are completed, the commission will schedule a workshop session. We hope the city acts judiciously but speedily in its examination. Let's get this project off the back burner.

Eissey meets with black leaders

BELLE GLADE-Leaders of the black communities in the Glades met with Dr. Edward M. Eissey, president of Palm Beach Junior College, at the Belle Glade Country Club Tuesday.

Three of the five PBJC Trustees also were in attendance at the luncheon.

Dr. Eissey told the small gathering the "college is not doing the job it is capable of doing" and solicits the help of minority community leaders to help get the job done.

"This purpose of the meeting is two-fold," said Eissey. "We want to inform you about current offerings at PBJC Glades and seek your help in informing the black communities," he said.

Eissey said he is proud of the job PBJC's older minority students are doing but it's not satisfied as president of the junior college.

Palm Beach Junior College will celebrate its 50th anniversary in 1983. The college opened its Glades campus in 1972 and Dr. Cecil Conley serves as provost of the Glades Campus.

Dr. Eissey said the Glades campus has an excellent staff, and if necessary will sent the faculty where the need is in the community, providing the students can't get to the college.

Eissey told the group he is also interested in getting their ideas about how the college can serve their communities better in the future. "I ask each of you to become a part of an advisory committee to the PBJC-Glades Campus," Eissey said.

He said the advisory committee would work closely with Dr. Conley and Mrs. Judy Schiebel, director of the Continuing Education Program and the Dolly Hall Cultural Arts Center.

Calvin Darville, a counselor at Lake Shore Middle School in Belle Glade suggested members on the advisory committee include high school students and students attending PBJC.

Darville said many of the students in the Glades find it extremely hard to find employment in the Glades upon completion of college.

"Most kids in the Glades go away to college in hopes of finding jobs when the college is located," said Darville.

Dr. Eissey said PBJC has several programs which offers 100 percent job placement upon completion.

Harm Miller also suggested the need for more minority faculty members.

Dr. Eissey said presently the college has a minority recruitment program underway.

Trustees Willard Findling, Mrs. Homer Hand and Mrs. Hisetta Dyson were in attendance at the meeting.

Seniors to receive Christmas goodies

SOUTH BAY-Senior citizens living in South Bay will be the recipients of Christmas baskets filled with goodies this Christmas if Commissioner Renick Morris can get financial support for the project.

At the November 16 meeting of the Commission, Morris asked local commissioners to support the Christmas basket project. Without taking a former vote, members of the Commission approved the project and named Morris chairman of a committee to work out the details.

Morris said he felt the city should do something for its senior citizens living in the community.

At the regular meeting of the Commission held Tuesday, Dec. 7, Morris reported he along with Commissioner Willie Marshall had compiled a list of approximately 50 senior citizens to receive the baskets.

Morris said the list would be re-worked and those persons deemed ineligible would be removed from the list.

He also said he plans to begin soliciting funds from community items for the baskets.

Morris told the Commission the content of the baskets will depend on how much revenue is generated.

He said he would make a complete status report on the project at the next regular city commission meeting.

Making Indian regalia seen as 'artistic outlet'

By BILL BRYANT

Making Indian regalia is more than just a hobby for John Baker.

"This (making Indian regalia) is my artistic outlet," said Baker, 30, who works as an administrative aid at Clewiston Primary School.

For 15 years, Baker has been making Indian regalia including war bonnets, beaded arm bands, belts and head bands, chokers, shields, breast plates and other items. Through the years, he has assembled a collection of his works, which he readily exhibits to anyone who "will lend him an ear."

Baker explained that he first began making Indian regalia as a member of the Order Of The Arrow in the Boy Scouts of America. One of the officers, a member of the Order Of The Arrow, who was part Indian, showed him how to make Indian regalia and he's (Baker) has continued to make Indian regalia ever since.

Baker says he has hundred of books about Indians and has learned a lot about Indian history through the years.

"It (making regalia) keeps me in touch with history on a more personal basis," said Baker, adding that "it makes the pictures in a history book more interesting."

Most of the regalia Baker makes is Plains Indian regalia.

The Plains Indians were among the first Indian tribes to use bright colors in their regalia. The Plains Indians came up with interesting designs and were excellent craftsmen, according to Baker.

He said the Plains' ideas of design and style soon spread to other Indian tribes all over the United States and Indian regalia became much more colorful.

Pointing to a coup stick he made, Baker explained that until the white man came along the Indians fought for honor.

"The idea wasn't to go in there (during a battle between two tribes) and kill," said Baker. "It was much more honorable for a warrior to just touch an enemy warrior had a chance to kill and leave him alive so he could fight another day."

Warriors who performed acts of bravery during a battle could collect coup feathers, according to COUP STICK is held by John Baker as he stands beside his collection of Indian regalia as a Boy Scout.

Baker. When the warriors returned from battle, they would recount deeds of bravery and coup feathers would be given to those warriors who performed acts of bravery during battle, he noted.

Acts of bravery had to be proven," Baker said. "They had to be witnessed. You couldn't tell a lie."

Turning to an otter breast plate among his collection, Baker pointed out that the Plains Indians believed the otter was a "magical animal," whose fur would provide protection and "special powers to those that wore it."

He went on to explain that young Indian men would have visions and during that vision, the men would obtain powers that would protect them in battle. The vision would be painted on the warrior's shield to protect him in battle. Baker said pointing to a shield he made.

Baker buys the materials he uses to make the Indian regalia from an Indian craft company. He designs an item on graph paper and then begins to make the item.

Once you have the materials, Baker said, "basically all it takes is patience." Currently, Baker is making a porcupine hair robe.

Baker noted that he isn't "some kind of weirdo" for making Indian regalia and that there are thousands of other people who make Indian regalia. Most belong to various Indian hobbyist associations throughout the United States, he said.

"This (Indian hobbies) fosters good relations between the white man and Indians," said Baker.

He pointed out that there are numerous "pow wows" throughout the United States where Indian dance contests and costume judging take place. One famous "pow wow" is the "All American Indian Days" held in Sherman, Wyo. The pow wows begin in August, according to Baker.

"The pow wows begin as an effort to improve Indian/white relationships," he said.

Baker said he would be glad to talk to anybody (particularly boys and girls over the age of 11) that might be interested in learning about Indian costumes and customs. He also hopes to establish an Indian dance team in the future.

'The Nutcracker' to open at Dolly Hand

BELLE GLADE —

Ballet Arts Theatre will present its 10th season's production of "The Nutcracker" at the Dolly Hand Cultural Arts Center, Saturday, December 11, at 8 p.m. All tickets are $10 and are now on sale at the Registrar's Office Palm Beach Junior College and Golden Charm Jewelry Store.

Artistic Director Marie Hale has chosen to keep Ballet Arts theatre's "The Nutcracker" in its original form. "It reminds us all of childhood fantasies in which it seemed some power might really make our dreams come true. Through Clara we can experience the magic of the season and we want to keep that for our audiences."

But the magic of "The Nutcracker" is far more than dreams. Tchaikowski's music is the best known and most popular of all ballet scores, particularly the melodic and varied divertissement section of the second act, known as "the Nutcracker Suite."

The story builds from a holiday gathering of family and friends, through a mysterious midnight battle between mechanical soldiers and menacing mice.

Heroine of the victory is Clara, a young girl who, in defeating the King of Mice, turns her beloved Nutcracker into a Prince. Her courageous act leads to a scenario of combat in the Land of Snow and Sweets, where first the Snow Queen, and then the Sugar Plum Fairy receive and entertain Clara. The dancing is joyful and varied, the scenery beautiful, and the mood perfect to brighten the week between Christmas and New Year's Day.

According to Mrs. Judy Schindler, the Dolly Hand Cultural Arts Center is excited to be able to offer this excellent production to the people of the Glades. It is the same performance held at the West Palm Beach Auditorium during the past nine years. It is certainly a first and special event for this area.

For more information, please call 996-3055.

BALLET ARTS THEATRE will present "The Nutcracker" at the Dolly Hand Cultural Arts Center on Saturday, Dec. 11. Tickets are now on sale at Palm Beach Junior College Glades Campus.

Seminole leader addresses Calusa Historical Society

By AILSA DEWING

Years ago, many Indians were reluctant to send their children to public schools to be educated. Today, Indian children go to school but now they have to be taught their native language and culture.

This observation and other changes in the Indian way of life were described for members of the Calusa Valley Historical Association last Thursday night by Betty Mae Jumper, a member and leader of the Seminole tribe.

The meeting was held in the Glades County Public Library in Moore Haven.

Mrs. Jumper was the first woman to serve as chairman of the Seminole tribe and the first Seminole Indian to graduate from high school. A native of Indiantown, she helped the tribe to organize in 1967 and served as its first vice chairman, and then as its second chairman. She also was an organizer of the United South East Tribes (USET), which represents the Seminole, Cherokee, Miccosukee, and Choctaw Indians.

Because her grandmother was Miccosukee and her grandfather was Creek, Mrs. Jumper speaks both languages. The Indian languages are different from one another, she explained, and those who speak one language do not understand another.

Defunding the two major enterprises of the Seminoles — Bingo and the sale of federal tax-free cigarettes — Mrs. Jumper said the Indians have been criticized for these ventures, "but they have brought in a lot of money which is used for improvements," she said.

The recently opened Museum of the Seminole Indian in Tampa was made possible through these funds, she said, and the income will also help support programs that have lost federal funds due to the cutbacks.

When the tribe organized in 1957, it had no money, according to Mrs. Jumper, and was in need of health services. Through negotiations, the government provided free medical and medical aid. Mrs. Jumper served as liaison between the tribe and the federal government. As a result, the Seminoles were one of the first to obtain community health service.

In discussing the lifestyle of the Indians, Mrs.

Jumper recalled the days when the tribe was matriarchal and children were born into their mother's clan. Although clan members were not necessarily blood related, it was taboo for clan members to intermarry. This is no longer true, she said.

The clans included such names as Smoke, Bird, Tiger, Otter, Wind, Frog, Deer, and Bear. Clan members did not adopt the clan name as a surname, however; she said.

Mrs. Jumper is now serving as public relations representative with Seminole Communications, a tribal council subsidiary, and is associated with the Seminole monthly publication, "Alligator Times."

Mock battle

PRACTICING WITH WEAPONS -- Glenn Lettingham, right, spars with Ronald Sanders, one of his students. The ends of the daggers are blunt instead of pointed. In a real fight, the blunt ends would be more effective than pointed, according to Lettingham, because they could punch a hole in opponent's throat.

Former Belle Glade resident named Hendry school supt.

BELLE GLADE- William C. Burke, 50, who lives in Port LaBelle, is the new superintendent of Schools for Hendry County.

He was appointed by Gov. Bob Graham on Nov. 22, to replace James C. Edwards, who left his post with two years remaining in his term, to go into private business.

Burke was raised in Chosen and graduated from Belle Glade High School in 1952. He received his bachelor's degree in physical education from the University of Florida in 1957. In 1967, Burke received his master's degree in education from Florida Atlantic University.

He was named as director of federal projects for Hendry County Schools in 1962 and served as director of the Glades/Hendry Schools Migrant Education Program from 1975, when he joined the Hendry County School system, until 1982.

Burke has also served as a Florida Department of Education consultant, high school guidance counselor, a driver education instructor and football coach.

A member of the board of directors of the Hendry/Glades

County Medical Center for the past five years, Burke is presently serving as board chairman in the first year of a two-year term. He has been a member of the LaBelle Quarterback Club for the past seven years. Burke is member of Carlson Memorial United Methodist Church in LaBelle and has a wife, Fran, who have two daughters and one son.

Christmas decorating rules announced

BELLE GLADE—The Belle Glade 1982 Annual Christmas home and business decorating contest again will be sponsored by the Belle Glade Chamber of Commerce in conjunction with local Garden Clubs.

According to Jewel Crane, executive secretary of the Belle Glade Chamber of Commerce, all homeowners and business owners must register their home or business in the contest by calling the Chamber of Commerce office by Friday, Dec. 17, before 5 p.m.

The categories for the Christmas decorating contest for homes and businesses are as follows:

- Best overall religious home scene
- Best overall non-religious home scene
- Best overall business/religious or non-religious

• Most original home or business. There is no entry fee for entering the contest but you must call the Chamber office and register your business before the deadline to win, said Mrs. Crane.

Prizes this year will be first, second, and third place ribbons.

All entries will be judged on Monday, Dec. 20, after dusk. Be sure to turn on all lighted scenes to make sure that all entries are given proper credit, Mrs. Crane added.

Assisting with the judges will be members of the Belle Glade Garden Club, Chosen Garden Club and the Belle Glade Study Club.

The telephone number at the Chamber is 996-2745 or 996-2252.

Pahokee store banned from food stamp list

ATLANTA, Ga. — Epps & Oliver Grocery, of 169 Carver Place, Pahokee, has been barred from accepting food stamps because of violations, the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Food and Nutrition Service reports.

Owned by Alfreid Ellick, Lawrence Epps and John Oliver, the store was disqualified from the food stamp program for six months, starting Oct. 4, after being charged with selling ineligible items for food coupons.

Pedro Renaud, who is in charge of the Miami field office of the Food and Nutrition Service, explained that the store will not be allowed to accept food coupons during the disqualification period.

Renaud added that food stamps, by law, can be used only to buy food. The only exceptions, he said, are garden seed and plants to be used to produce food.

THE GLADES EBONIQUE LADIES CLUB of Pahokee donated three Thanksgiving baskets to needy families in the Glades Area. The donating of Thanksgiving baskets filled with fresh vegetables, canned goods, and meats is annual community service project for the club. Free blood pressure tests set at fire house

BELLE GLADE — by stroke.

The major underlying cause for stroke, the Palm Beach County Fire Chiefs Association and the American Heart Association will conduct free blood pressure screenings Tuesday, December 7, and the first Tuesday of each month at most local fire stations. It just one 747 or D-10 Jumbo Jet were to crash each week, killing all its crew and passengers, the people of this nation would be outraged. Airports would be closed and planes grounded by FFA. America would panic. Yet, the equivalent to that, 25,000 are killed by drunk drivers on American highways every year. Shakespeare wisely wrote: "O thou invisible spirit of wine, if thou has no name to be known by, let us call thee devil!"

Proverbs 31:4-6 records the words a mother taught her regent son: "It is not for kings, O Lemuel, not for kings to drink wine, not for rulers to crave beer, lest they drink and forget what the law decrees, and deprive all the oppressed of their rights. Give beer to those who are perishing, let them drink beer to forget their poverty and remember their misery no more" (NIV).

Be responsible during this holiday season. On the road, with your family, at the job, you need the same kind of sound judgement required of a king. And alcohol will rob you of it. Before you celebrate with that first drink, hear what Solomon said: "Wine is a mocker and beer a brawler, whoever is led astray by them is not wise" (Proverbs 20:1 (NIV))

"Who has woe? Who has sorrow? Who has bruise? Who has complaints? Who has needless trouble? Who has blood shot eyes? Whose linger over wine, who go to sample bowls of mixed wine" (Proverbs 23:29-30 (NIV))

FFVA Intermodal program expanded

"It appears that Intermodal has come to stay in Florida for the transportation of fresh fruits and vegetables," says James T. Duncan, Executive Vice President & General Manager, Florida Fruit & Vegetable Association.

"Two years ago FFVA undertook a pilot program which was considered acceptable and as a result last year entered into a full-fledged Intermodal Program for member participants, a program that has proved without question that it provided an alternative method of transportation for our industry," Duncan warehouse.

Intermodal is a plan utilizing the Trailer-On-Flatcar (TOFC) concept in which product is loaded onto a trailer pulled by a truck, at a place of origin, transferred to railroads for the long haul; then back to truck again for delivery to customer continue to need and depend upon the trucking industry for substantial transportation service but with the advent of Intermodal will not be dependent entirely upon the motor carrier.

At a conference in September, the Family Lines Railroad (Seaboard System Railroad) announced to FFVA its intentions of immediately going into the transportation of fresh fruits and vegetables from the state of Florida.

Duncan said, "This program by Seaboard System Railroad would be an expansion of the Intermodal plan established by FFVA, a program that proved to be an acceptable one, both to shippers and receivers as evidenced by the fact that the railroad is going into a full-fledged program of the same type including the furnishing of equipment and handling of all other particulars; including the transportation of the product from shipper packinghouse to the customer warehouse; a concept that this Association has advocated for some 15 to 20 years."

Duncan added, "Frank D. Teets, President of FFVA, who has been a strong advocate of the Intermodal concept and Roy Vandegrift, Jr., Chairman of the Association's Transportation and Energy Resources Committee both join me in expressing great satisfaction in the fact that Florida Fruit & Vegetable Association has played a major part in the establishment of this program by proving that it could work."

Interest is well below prime lending rates charged by most banks.
